BACKGROUND

Jules has always been a natural-born leader who has believed in serving something larger than herself. It wasn't until she had a near-death experience a few years ago after a wake boarding accident that she had a direct encounter with that "something" and got connected to what her work on earth was really about.

She was coming out of the MRI in the hospital room and saw a white figure come towards her and a council of six black-shadow members. Jules heard a voice that said "You have more work to do here, do you want to do it?"

They thought her neck may have been broken and she may have been paralyzed. She said yes, "As long as I don't come back as a vegetable" and was instantly zapped back into her body and felt this energy forge her neck back together and shoot down her spine.

Since that moment Jules has been clear her life is being being through her rather than by her. With this vision she created Unconventional Life, a Forbes column, top-ranked podcast for entrepreneurs, and live-events companies encouraging others to take the path less traveled. She has reached millions of people in over 75 different countries using her music as a tool to connect and impact people further on her mission.

“ Our word creates our world.
Only in our sharing that, can we start to transform our environments.”
